It's important that we include everybody regardless of age, disability, identity or sexuality. Everyone is equal and a valuable member of society. We need to create safe spaces for people to connect, where no one feels judged or excluded for being who they are.

I think this topic is a really important one to discuss about because some european societies need the migration to keep working, beacuse some of them need those people to do the things their own local population like make the population grow or working at some sectors locals don't want to work in. And some problems are the racist point of view of a part of the local population but it can be solved with some help in favor of inclusion from the government like free local language or local cultural classes.

A major problem is how migrants arrive in Europe. Because many refugees from Africa arrive in boats irregularly and in that process they are exploited, they go to prisons, they ask for money, and a large number of refugees are raped.
